Pexx, Inc. Rounds Out Communications Infrastructure Support by Combining High-Tech and Low-Tech Solutions

Pexx, Inc., a wireless networking and technology solutions provider, is now offering full turnkey tower services. In addition to providing wireless networking, video surveillance and cabling services, Pexx employs an experienced tower crew available to erect new towers, maintain and service existing towers, and demobilize abandoned and dangerous towers.

Jennifer Greene, President of Pexx, Inc. says “High-Tech, Low-Tech, or No-Tech – we find the right solution and get the job done! That’s what we do.” Jennifer adds, “Combining low-tech and high-tech services allows us to offer a total solutions package enabling our telecommunication clients to provide low-cost, reliable services to their communities.”

The new Pexx combined service package includes tower and communication network design, equipment procurement, construction, installation, and maintenance. Tower services include inspections, site upgrades, maintenance, antenna/line change outs, radio installation and replacements, and new site construction. Tower types include stealth, guyed, monopole and lattice towers up to 500 feet.

Pexx networking services include network analysis and design, security, installation, maintenance and support for fixed and wireless networks. Network designs include all available broadband frequencies and speeds including the 4.9 GHz licensed frequency reserved for first responders and the latest GigE radios increasing network speed tenfold.

This total package enables Pexx customers to come to one reliable source for all their telecommunication, surveillance and networking requirements. Industries benefiting from Pexx, Inc.’s expertise include telecommunication service providers, municipalities, law enforcement, oil and gas, energy, education, and corporations of all sizes.

Pexx rolls up their sleeves to get the job done. From literally digging in the trenches, climbing into the skies, and providing professional executive support, Pexx services are unrivaled.
